Saeen Zubair Sahib,

Assalam-o-Alekum,

Bilkul baja farmai tussan, computer dee taleem bahoon ahem hay balkay waqt da taqaza hay. Har paishay wich ajkal computer dee zaroorat pondi hay.

Eenda sab toon aasan tareeqa ee ho hay jo computer market wich 2nd hand milday pin jinhan dee qeemat chand hazar hay, o ghin tay bismillah karo. Eenday wastay sirf itnee angrezi aandi howay k tusan computer tay banray hoay icons koon parh ghino tay samajh wanjo.

Har program dee on line help maujood hondi hay jerhi key board kanoon F1 da button dabawan naal khul wendi hay. Agar tussan een toon ee koi basic sawal puchna chahenday way tan forum tay likho, inshallah saday computer literate bhira oonda jawab desin.

Saraiki bhiravo taleem aam karo tay apnee community koon taraqqi dio, ee ho asaday masail da hal hay.

Sir,

Tuhaday seraiki likhan da style meku baun pasand aye.

Hik lawz de baare puchhna hai.

Ussah likhya hai "asaday"

Usse akhaynde hain "Saday".

Lekin main hikk Bible di translation de vicch padhya hai

"ay sarag vich raan vaaley asaday pita" (our father in heaven)

My question is how is the word (a)saday (our) pronounced. Is the preceeding "a" pronounced or silent.

I understand that it would be a derivate of Assah (we) and day(of)

But is it pronounced as assa day, or is it pronounced as (a)saday?

Thanks for your help.

I know there can be various phonetic variants in the various dialects. Your clarification will definitely help.

Thanks

Vikram
