Siraiki by all means is a different language and and different ethnic group. Any body who claims it to be mere a dialectic of Punjabi language and part of greater Punjab needs to have exposure and sense be knocked in his mind by God.

I am sorry to start with these wordings , I was just going through this website and came across some remarks by some one regarding status of siraiki language.

To start with I would like to congratulate people behind this website , I have been following the development of this website through years , and as mentioned by developer of the website , I recall siraiki.com, siraiki.org and that both disappeared after some time.

Anyways Siraiki in any form is back, and this is the main point. I hope this time website stays here for ever and groows and prospers with time.
